

Work Journal
July 13, 2007

During our wait to go home Norm starts to whisper something about ammunition to use on my car pool buddy, who in fact is not my buddy. She declared this to me a week ago. That is when we talked about her alliance with Janine, and her dislike for me. Jim cuts Norm off and tells us that during the 2:30 pm break Bob my supervisor starts verbally assaulting Mary. This is nothing new. Happens pretty regular. And it appears Mary likes this treatment. Because when she is not getting it she starts verbally attacking him or does some physical thing to irritate him. Bob must have gone overboard or Mary was tired. She asked him to stop. When he didn't she first threw ice at him. Then threw her bottle of soda and hit the wall. It was time to go and we didn't hear the rest of the story.

Mary gets in the car. Slams the door and proceeds to finish. She said she took a cup of stinkbugs and put them under Bob's work truck seat. When Bob found them he went and told her supervisor and our assistant manager that these girls (?) are out of control. Mary had to clean the bugs out of Bob's truck. She was very stressed and upset on our way home.