Re: 8/30/2011

Mackenzie-I had been feeling very sick for many days. I do attribute it to the water in my wound. I was on one round of antibiotics and it felt as if it had kicked the virus. But a few days later it returned with a vengeance. I truly hope the stronger antibiotics this second go round will work. I do not want to make my claim anymore complicated and compensation is not what I am looking for, I just want to be well. My relationship with John is a bit upsetting and that I feel I have to fight him every step.

The day I met your attorney to settle my case she made a profound statement employers just don't understand that if they just sent their employees a card and encouraged them to get well soon it would go a long way.

I had my session with the physical therapist yesterday regarding my knee injury and she confirmed the difference in size between my right and left leg. Since I have been relieved of my duties at work I have made it a point to ice and stay off my legs as much as possible, not to mention I have been a bit depressed. I am not made to sit and do nothing. What I really need to know from you is if my claim is accepted. We are creeping into another pay period and I do not know if I have any finances coming in. Please address this ASAP.

There is no need to listen to my phone message it just reiterates what I sent to you in writing.

Have a nice day,

Sincerely, Tiffany Anderson
