Dear Sara,

I am writing you to follow up on our last conversation regarding discovery and the upcoming status conference, this Friday. I wanted to be sure that you would be bringing me some (or many) new documents from my list of previously-requested items as contained in the letter to Judge McGill. I need to know in advance if there will be new documents for me to see and have that morning. Please let me know if you will be bringing your entire file on me again, so that I can be ready to go through it. Please reply to this email.

But if you don't provide me with any new documents from my prior requests, then my intention will be for us to speak with judge as quickly as possible — not be shuffled off into some side room for discussions. I would like to move my case forward as far as possible on Friday. I recall specifically from the last hearing that all sub rosa evidence, all missing medical records, and Allems' disqualification were to be taken up on Friday. See you then.
