FOLLOWUP

I have told her she needs to be followed up by her primary care physician, Dr. Freund, in the next 5 to 7 days. I am not sure that discharge planning has arranged that. When she is seen by Dr. Freund, she will need a repeat x-ray of that left ankle. She will need a BMP. She will need a BNP.

Her overall prognosis is poor with her poorly controlled diabetes and her apparent lack of insight into this disease.

CONDITION AT TIME OF DISCHARGE Fair.

Problems & Plan

1 Acute renal failure probably secondary to ATN : slightly worse, nephrotoxic meds stopped by nephrologist. Started on Diuretics per nephro. Renal USG shows multiple calculi within kidney-but no hydronephrosis, not present in last USG here in 2007-d/w niece Tiffany. D/W Dr Albert who recommended CT as USG findings did not correlate-shows vascular calcifications in kidney with chronic med ds-no intervention needed at this time

2. Distal Fibular fx-consulted Dr Nakata-Pt had a fall here in the hospital 4 days ago. Ice, elevation, pain control, ace wrap for now. Explained to pt that may take a long time to heal due to DM

3 Congestive heart failure (Active)-started on diuresis again

4 Cellulitis and abscess of leg (Active)- On Vancomycin + IV rocephin-will dc and start PO keflex, appreciate ID f/u

5 Proteinuria and CKD from diabetic Nephropathy: Restart ACE-I once renal function is stabilized.

6 Hypoglycemia and poorly controlled DM with HgA1c is of 14.20, Cont lantus in am and pm at lowered doses and ISS and acc checks. D/W DPOA about poor DM control which can cause multiorgan failing and that this is a long term problem- I do not expect much improvement overall due to diet and meds non-compliance-?comfort food since the passing of her sister recently but i think this is a chronic issue

7 Essential hypertension (Active) stable, monitor

8. Social-DPOA is overwhelmed, needs a letter for pt-d/w Social worker, will need rehab and suspect long term placement as well. DPOA is aware.

Plan dc in 2 days if more stable

Chronic Problems:

Cellulitis and abscess of leg
Congestive heart failure
Diabetes mellitus type 2

Regarding: Mary Jean Parvin

Dear Tyah Petersen:

I am writing you today to put your company on formal notice that until January 15th, 2015, I will not be taking any action in regards to Mary Jean Parvin. Do not call me, send me any bills for her care, send the police to where I live, nor harass me in any other manner. I am in the process of compiling documentation that will be shared in due time, detailing her finances and removing myself from her home. After that date, I will resume as her medical care decision-maker.

I have not appreciated the lack of professionalism exhibited by your company towards me and I will not tolerate it again. My mother is in the hospital. A formal complaint will be filed against your misconduct (including all participants involved in making me sign documents under duress as well as the conduct of your social worker towards me on September 16th, 2014, sending the Lodi police over to me).

If you fail to abide by this clear request for a respite from your pressure, then I will seek any and all legal remedies against your company. I expect your company to take exceptional care of Mary Jean Parvin during this time period.

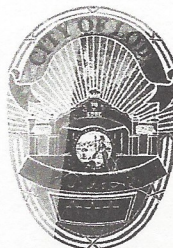

Signed,

Tiffany Anderson

Dear John

It's a curious thing, how a person loses all perspective when he is so close to a problem.

It becomes difficult to see the issues clearly, and that has definitely happened to me in recent months. But in the past week I've been able to pull back from our difficulties, and I now see everything in an entirely new light. It is incredible just how foolish I have been since you decided to leave.

I have tolerated your unfaithfulness for almost a year and a half and was even so naive as to permit Cindy to sleep with you over and over again. I can't believe now that I did that. I guess I just loved you so much that I was willing to do anything just to keep you from leaving me.

But I'll tell you, John, those days are over! If you want to go, you can certainly do so. In fact, that may be for the best. I doubt if I can ever trust you again or feel for you as I once did. I wasn't a perfect wife, to be sure, but no other man has touched me since. I pledged myself to you. But you violated my trust - not once but repeatedly for all this time. I'm no longer special to you - I'm just like an old shoe. I can't live with that. I'd rather face life alone than as a member of your harem. If Cindy is the one you want, I hope the two of you will be happy together. I'm still not sore. how something so wonderful became so dirty and distorted, but that is between you and the lord. We both have to answer to him in our own way, and my conscience is clear.

So where do we go from here, John? I've been doing some intensive thinking, and believe you should pack up all your things and leave.

It just won't work for you to hopscotch between Cindy and me, sleeping with us both and trying to make it all seem so normal. You say you aren't sure which one you want? Well, that isn't very inspiring to me. You pledged eternal love and commitment to me on our wedding day, but now that could be gone with the toss of a coin. What we both need is some time apart. I think you should find your own place, maybe with Cindy if you wish. If in the future you decide you want to be my husband, then we'll talk about it. I make no promises, however, I'm doing everything possible to remove you from my heart, to spare myself any more pain. It's not going to be easy. You were my only love — the only one I ever wanted.
But that was then and this is now. God bless you, John. The grandkids, kids and I will miss you.

Jane

Sept 25 - 2007

John

I've been through some very tough moments since you decided to leave, you know. My love for you is so strong that I just couldn't face the possibility of life without you. To a person like me who expected to remain committed for life, it is a severe shock to see our relationship begin to unravel. Nevertheless, I have done some intense soul searching, and I now realize that I have been attempting to hold you against your will. That simply can't be done. As I reflect on our courtship and early years together, I'm reminded that you married me of your own free choice. I did not blackmail you or twist your arm or offer you a bribe. It was a decision you made without pressure from me. Now you say you want out of the marriage and, obviously, I have to let you go. I'm aware that I can no more force you to stay today than I could have made you marry me in 1980. You are free to go. If you never call me again, then I will accept your decision. I admit that this entire experience has been painful, but I'm going to make it. The hard has been with me thus far, and He'll go with me in the future. You and I had some wonderful times together, John. You were my first real love, and I'll never forget the memories we shared. I will pray for you and trust that God will guide you in the years ahead.

Jane ☺
